"A dream?" said Ella curiously. "Yes, a dream. Perhaps, in a dream, I saw him with another, dead in the morning, and saw, with horror, that I had been the cause of it." "But the man was saved--why should you be punished?" asked Ella. "I know not what may be the end. I cannot save myself. No one else is in fault but myself. I cannot bear this thought. I shall think of it no more, and of nothing else. I shall begin a new life, and ask God to let me forget the past." "Can I help you?" asked Ella, anxiously. "I will pray for you." "No," said Ella, with a shudder; "I do not want any help, nor would I ask for it. What I must do I can do alone." Ella rose and went to the stone-window, to which she looked earnestly for a few moments before replying to the priest, as if trying to calculate what was her best course in the midst of the complexity of her feelings. At length, she turned round with the proud, resolute face of a woman whose whole future lay in her own hand, and said to the priest, "I will go with you, Father." "Thank you, my daughter." There was a confused murmur in the room; all hastened, with some awkwardly subdued emotion, to see the two who had been thrown asunder again, and who now, with silent yet confident faces, stood before each other. Two persons, one in supreme distress, the other with a firm resolute look, went away together; the one weeping, and wringing her

[April]. 25 / Total â€“ all time.The invention relates to a speed regulating assembly for installation in a vehicle transmission, whereby a speed regulating component is rotatably mounted on a transmission shaft and carries the speed regulating element. A known design of this type is described, for example, in the German Offenlegungsschrift [laid-Open Application] No. 1,944,045 and the corresponding U.S. Pat. No. 3,698,288. The known speed regulating assembly is of the type that has a planetary gear which can be coupled to the drive train. The planetary gear cooperates with a ramp, which is inclined with respect to the longitudinal axis of the transmission shaft, and which cooperates with a ring gear. The ring gear is continuously connected with the drive shaft. The ring gear is adjacent an annular disk, which is rotatably mounted on the transmission shaft. The annular disk has a sloping wall on its outer side that is connected with the transmission shaft. On its outer side, the annular disk carries a pin that is mounted eccentrically, and which is rotatably disposed on an axially extending shaft. The eccentric pin engages a toothed element, which meshes with a gear wheel. The gear wheel is connected with a clutch, and which when actuated, carries out a power exchange between the planetary gear and the transmission shaft. A synchronizer sleeve, which is actuated by means of the clutch, cooperates with the ramp and with the ring gear. Due to the design of this known speed regulating assembly, it is ensured that upon actuation of the clutch, the ring gear will not revolve, but rather, will only rotate together with the pin. In the known speed regulating assembly, the speed regulating component and the ring gear are not
